Tara Houska (Couchiching First Nation) is a tribal attorney, founder of Giniw Collective, and a former advisor on Native American affairs to Bernie Sanders. She spent six months on the frontlines fighting the Dakota Access Pipeline, and is currently engaged in the movement to defund fossil fuels and a years-long struggle against Enbridge's Line 3 pipeline. She is a co-founder of Not Your Mascots, a group committed to positive representation of Native peoples.

She is a TED speaker, the 2017 Harvard "Public Interested" keynote, received an "Awesome Women Award" from Melinda Gates, the 2021 American Climate Leadership Award, a 2019 Rachel's Network Catalyst Award and is featured in "Women: A Century of Change" by National Geographic. Tara has written for the women-led climate anthology "All We Can Save", the New York Times, CNN, the Guardian, Vogue, and Indian Country Today.
